

An aerial photograph of an archaeological site. In the foreground, a person wearing a light blue shirt and a wide-brimmed hat is crouching on a sandy ground, holding a smartphone to take a photo. Behind them are several large, dark, cylindrical stone columns. Some of the columns have small white labels with numbers attached to them. The background shows more of the site with some dry grass and scattered stones.

MASTER CLASS

PHOTOGRAMMETRY AND 3D MODELING FOR ARCHAEOLOGICAL RECORDING FOR BUILDINGS AND OBJECTS

Phil Sapirstein
University of Nebraska-Lincoln

Friday, February 1
10:00 a.m.
Carlos Museum Tate Room

Art History Department
Ancient Mediterranean Studies
Mediterranean Archaeology
Hightower Fund