Course Description:
Human health is intrinsically linked to dietary practices. Plants, in particular, may be used both as medicine and food, and it can often be difficult to draw a line between the two groups: food may be used as medicine and vice versa. The lens of ethnopharmacology can be used to gain an integrated biocultural perspective on foods, encompassing not only the substantive (or physical) qualities, but also the intangible (symbolic). In this course, we will explore the ways that human groups identify, collect, create, and transform foods, how they shape those into dietary behaviors, and how this influences human health. The pharmacological properties of foods will be examined and we will use case studies of dietary complexes, such as the Mediterranean diet, in order to better understand the food-medicine continuum as a determinant of health and well-being. Lastly, we will examine trends in the industrialization of food, and the resulting health impact of modern food practices.

Instructor: Cassandra L. Quave, Ph.D.

Required Texts:

Course Requirements:
Attendance/Participation: As a student in this course, it is expected that you will actively participate in each class and complete assignments on time. Assignments are due no later than the assigned due date. Exceptions to this policy will require explicit permission of the instructor in writing.

Contact Information
Office: Center for the Study of Human Health, Candler Library, Rm. 107E
Office hours: 1-3 p.m. on Tuesdays or by appointment
E-mail: cquave@emory.edu

Other Resources: TeachEthnobotany YouTube Channel ; Dr. Quave’s website

Course Requirements:
1. Assignments are due no later than the assigned due date. If you have technical or personal computer difficulties, you are expected to use the Emory computer work stations or seek Emory computer technology assistance. Late assignments will NOT be accepted, and you will receive a zero for any missing or late work. Exceptions to this policy will require explicit permission of the instructor in writing. If you are unable to submit your work through blackboard you must turn in a hard copy to Dr. Quave before the assignment deadline. Do not submit any work to Dr. Quave via email unless permission to do so is specifically granted in writing.
2. Submission of corrupt files for written assignments will be considered as a missing assignment, and students will receive a zero for that assignment. Check your files after upload into blackboard to ensure that they have properly loaded and can be opened.

3. Appropriate documentation for class absences or late assignments due to medical emergencies must be turned in to Dr. Quave within 48 hours of the absence or missed assignment.

Course Procedures:

Dropping a Course: Emory students may withdraw from one or more courses until the Friday at 4pm of the sixth full week of class of the semester after the drop-add period providing that the student continues to carry a load of 12 credit hours or is in his/her final semester of residence as a graduating senior. Please consult your advisor or the Office for Undergraduate Education.

Disability: Emory University is committed to ensuring that all University goods, services, facilities, and programs are meaningfully accessible to eligible persons with a disability in accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act 1973, and other pertinent federal, state, and local laws. The Office of Disability Services (ODS) is the central clearinghouse that processes and facilitates all accommodation requests from qualified students who have completed the registration process in its entirety. Students are responsible for initiating the accommodation request process by self-disclosing their disability and/or chronic medical condition directly to ODS. More detailed information is available on the website at www.ods.emory.edu, or make requests directly to the Office of Disability Services, Emory University, 201 Dowman Drive, University Administration Building, Suite 110, Atlanta, GA 30322, 404.727.6016 (v) or 404.712.2049 (TDD).

Academic Honesty Policy: For more than half a century, academic integrity has been maintained at Emory through the student-initiated and student-regulated Honor Code. The responsibility for maintaining a standard of unimpeachable honor in all academic work falls upon every individual who is a part of Emory University. Every student who chooses to attend Emory College agrees, as a condition of attendance, to abide by all provisions of the Honor Code as long as he or she remains a student in the college. By continued attendance in Emory College, students reaffirm their pledge to adhere to and uphold the provisions of the Honor Code. The Honor Council, a body of at least ten annually appointed students, has responsibility for investigating and adjudicating all alleged violations of the Honor Code. Students found to have violated the Honor Code are subject to verbal reprimand, written reprimand, F in the course in question, suspension, dismissal, or a combination of these and other sanctions. Copies of the Honor Code are distributed and explained to new students and are available in the Emory College office, 218 White Hall, and online at http://www.college.emory.edu/current/standards/honor_code.html.

In this class, the Emory University honor code is in place and you are explicitly responsible for taking care to present work that you claim as your own: there is a no tolerance policy in effect for plagiarism from any source, inclusive of internet sites, and the written and spoken work of others. If you do not understand what plagiarism is, please read the honor code carefully and seek assistance from the instructor.

Course Expectations:

Students in this course are expected to be active learners and participants, requiring all students to take an active role in their own learning and to share the learning process with the class. Evidence of active learning includes:

- Attending all class meetings, which is critical to promoting a learning community within the class.
- Reading all assigned materials and making note of questions, areas of interest, and connections you find to other readings.
- Active participation, allowing each student to test his or her own assumptions as well as expand the worldview of others in the class.
Bonus Opportunities
Students will be given a variety of different opportunities to earn bonus points, with a maximum value of 15 points that can be earned. In addition to the posted bonus activities, students may suggest additional activities taking place in the Atlanta area for inclusion in the bonus opportunity list. Activities must be suggested to Dr. Quave at least a week before the event so that Dr. Quave can make the rest of the class aware of the opportunity. In all cases, students must e-mail Dr. Quave a 1 page reflection piece on their experience. See the Bonus Folder on the course blackboard site.

Course Grading Policy
Your grade is calculated as the sum of total points earned divided by the total points possible.

Academic Advising and Class Deans
If you have any academic concerns or questions about Emory College of Arts and Sciences policies, you should first meet with an OUE academic adviser. If an academic adviser is unavailable to meet with you, you may meet with an OUE dean during open hours.
- OUE Academic Adviser appointments: Visit White Hall 300 or call 404.727.6069
- Deans’ Open Hours: http://college.emory.edu/home/administration/office/undergraduate/hours.html

Academic Support
There are a range of resources available to Emory undergraduates designed to enrich each student’s educational experience.
- Visit http://college.emory.edu/advising for a list of support programs and appointment directions

Access and Disability Resources
Students with medical/health conditions that might impact academic success should visit Access, Disability Services and Resources (ADSR formerly the Office of Disability Services, ODS) to determine eligibility for appropriate accommodations. Students who receive accommodations must present the Accommodation Letter from ADSR to your professor at the beginning of the semester, or when the letter is received.

Attendance Policies (Absences and Absences from Examinations)
- Absences: Although students incur no administrative penalties for a reasonable number of absences from class or laboratory, they should understand that they are responsible for the academic consequences of absence and that instructors may set specific policies about absence for individual courses.
- Absences from Examinations: A student who fails to take any required midterm or final examination at the scheduled time may not make up the examination without written permission from a dean in the Office for Undergraduate Education. Permission will be granted only for illness or other compelling reasons, such as participation in scheduled events off-campus as an official representative of the University. A student who takes any part of a final examination ordinarily will not be allowed to defer or retake that final. Deferred examinations must be taken during the student’s next semester of residence by the last date for deferred examinations in the academic calendar or within twelve months if the student does not re-enroll in the college. Failure to take a deferred examination by the appropriate deadline will result automatically in the grade IF or IU.

Honor Code
Upon every individual who is a part of Emory University falls the responsibility for maintaining in the life of Emory a standard of unimpeachable honor in all academic work. The Honor Code of Emory College is based on the fundamental assumption that every loyal person of the University not only will conduct his or her own life according to the dictates of the highest honor, but will also refuse to tolerate in others action which would sully the good name of the institution. Academic misconduct is an offense generally defined as any action or inaction which is offensive to the integrity and honesty of the members of the academic community.
- The Honor Code, a list of offenses and the Honor Council process may be found; http://college.emory.edu/home/academic/policy/honor_code.html
