Clinics & Hospitals

While Emory is known in the international community for its cardiac and pulmonary expertise, students also can receive quality care here at Emory. When a student becomes ill, he or she can call Emory Clinic and schedule an appointment for the same day if necessary. In the event of a student emergency, the Emory University Hospital's ER is available. Situated in Atlanta, Emory University also has strong ties with the headquarters of the American Cancer Society and the American Heart Association, Egleston Children's Hospital, and the Center for Disease Control. Many Emory students participate in internships with these institutions.
